

Published based on Forex Trading: The Story Of The Beginning Trader

Forex Trading: The Story Of The Beginning Trader

The markets function under the same laws as all other world as they and are a world part. But the trader, getting to psychological dependence on the rates, perceives the market much more sharply and more painfully, than other parties of the validity. The market seems to the player more rigidly and than it actually is. However, in itself markets aren't emotional, but only its reaction to results of the work depends on the person and what emotions the person tests.

As my sights at character of mutual relations with the market developed, I have come to a conclusion that the major success factor is the psychological factor that is a kit of our behavioral reactions to the situations connected with trade. And it, in turn, very much depends on "nerve", sensation of danger of loss and acquisition possibility when live and blood money is involved in business. Therefore the main and irreplaceable lack of work on all educational accounts is an absence of the major component - psychological.

Unique appointment of educational trade I see only in mastering by technical skills of work, in adaptation to the interface of programs. In difference, for example, from the child doing the first steps in a material world, the market trader doesn't have instincts of any skills previously pledged at level.

Geniuses of trade do not become right after the birth. The techniques of work in the market should study step by step. Thus the width of a step very often equals to our growth. Having fallen from height of the growth and having smashed we stand up and already from this new point we do the following step forward.

The way of the trader for anybody isn't strewed by a god-send and if it is strewed it is a sufficient occasion that you slip on it. Probably, my experience of trading and also development of my sights at character of mutual relations with the market will appear useful to beginning traders. Thus I mean availability at the reader with the minimum technical training.

Comprehension of bases

The first picture is pleasure of anticipation. I have begun the acquaintance to the market with exchange FOREX market. Everything that I have learned about it by that moment have extraordinary intrigued me. The first reaction was the following: "What money can be earned at rather small initial costs! What percent! And I also didn't know that such is possible.

The second picture is the self-justification at failures. I have opened the educational account in one of the dealing centers giving possibility to trade in market FOREX through the Internet. Any more without remembering precisely the successes in educational trade, I will notice that there were also pluses which I rejoiced, and minuses with which I was afflicted, involuntarily trying to discover the psychological justification to losses.

In general to our ego it is inherent in all to find an explanation, the justification. We are capable to convince ourselves in everything, especially if it is necessary for the justification of our actions. I will notice that in the same way our ego as it is paradoxical, capable to convince itself in absolutely opposite and to find not smaller number of arguments. Say, this time wasn't in time, has overlooked, but on the real account I won't admit such - I will be constrained, accurate, carefully analyzing each step...

For the practical tips about forex trading - please visit this site.

Those who are in search of forex investment opportunities - visit this forex managed account site.